"Honesty is something that is in me, especially now. We, as human beings, are at a stage in our evolution where we have to keep up with the fact that we are becoming more and more intelligent, we're about ourselves and our world but also our impact on our world. I've had many speeches from my 10-year-old daughter, I've had to deal with criticism — not that I care, but I needed direction and I needed to be called out on certain things of thought and behavior that I have been conditioned as a man to believe all my life. Things that I've had to witness and untangle myself from."
